Excerpt: . . . can be used, statutory requirements to target services to certain groups of workers, and the need to respond to local economic conditions. Commenting on workforce boards ability to form strategic partnerships, one expert noted that there are no funds to support such endeavors and no performance standards to measure them. With regard to regional economic development, experts said boards are structured around local areas, not regions, regional economies are highly variable, regional governance structures can make achieving buy-in difficult and that rural areas can be particularly challenged in pursuing regional approaches. Beyond the question of how extensive demand-driven practices were, Labor officials said a number of indicators show that the initiatives are changing the system. According to Labor, they have seen a system-shift in the approach to implementing workforce solutions through an increase in demand-driven topics at conferences since the roll out of the initiatives. Labor said this shift has been driven by partnerships between the workforce investment system, business, industry, and educators using the High Growth framework. Labor...

Reviews

This book is definitely worth acquiring. I have gone through and so I am certain that I will likely to read through again again in the future. Its been printed in an exceptionally basic way in fact it is only after I finished reading this publication in which actually altered me, change the way in my opinion.
