A Text on Mathematical Economics

By Alka Budhiraja, Pawas Prabhakar

Academic Foundation, 1995. Softcover. Book Condition: New. Mathematics has been an indispensable tool in economic analysis. Generally, most of the students are found to have, what is called, mathematics phobia. For them studying mathematical methods is somewhat unpleasant and taxing experience. Such an attitude, the authors feel (from their experience of teaching honors student), arises out of the students' inability to derive maximum benefit from a book due to complex presentation of its text. Even in cases, where presentation is simple, the lack of many solved examples minimizes the students' efficiency to grasp the concepts. An ideal way out of this would be to explain various concepts with the help of solved examples. In specially designing this textbook, the authors have made a sincere effort to incorporate the above methodology by presenting a variety of problems, after explaining every concept. These problems elucidate the concepts and their applications. Throughout the book, emphasis is given on applications rather than pure mathematical tools needed in economic analysis. Every concept in the book has been dealt with very patiently. The mathematics presented is easily accessible. However, this has not been done at the expense of rigour. The book contains more than 300 problems...
