Not illustrated. 1903 Excerpt: .carefully elaborated--moccasins, robe, braided hair--but each is part of the whole, and over all is a subtle flow of surface which appeals temptingly to the sense of touch. The sculptor has appreciated his advantage in the effective contrasting of the two figures, the old wrinkled warrior and the aspiring child. One feels in every stroke which characterizes and differentiates the two, the sincerity of a skilled man delighted with his theme and with his models. Roland Hinton Perry was born in New York, in 1870. He entered the Art Students League at sixteen, studied drawing and painting for three years, and then went to Paris, where after a year with Gerome, he turned to sculpture. He chose as his master in the new work the eminent sculptor, Chapu, and after his untimely death, Puech. In view of certain of Mr. Perry's productions, one feels that the young man must have regretted that circumstances had conspired to prevent his studying with Puget or Bernini, for Mr. Perry's art has a decided leaning toward the dramatic and somewhat restless styles of these famous southerners. In the hasty but effective Fountain of Neptune of the Congressional Library, Mr. Perry showed his remarkable facility, his attitude of mind, and not less prominently a tendency towards exaggeration of muscle, which while frequent enough in European art, is very exceptional in this country. Mr. Perry is full of ideas, and whatever he produces will be viewed with interest. Philip Martiny...
