Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: the other states and demand that the employer accept the assignment in writing before the same is valid. A very helpful provision which aims to obviate trouble in the home, is included in the laws of four of the states, viz: the signature or acknowledgment of the assignment by both the husband and the wife. Only three of the states definitely regulate the charges which may be collected on a salary loan. Several of them legalize charges for investigating security offered, but since this applies only to those laws which include mortgage loans and the charges are intended primarily for investigation of the property upon which the mortgage is given, they are not included in this table. Four of the states require that the assignment contain certain definite information. Colorado provides that the amount of salary assigned must be stated. Connecticut requires the rate of interest and the time of assignment to be given. Massachusetts not only requires that the assignment state the amount of money received and the interest to be paid but also that a standard form (b) of assignment be used. The Michigan law requires that the assignment contain the amount of the loan, interest charged and time of loan. Five states require a license in order to conduct the business of loaning on salaries. Maryland and Massachusetts define what the term assignment shall include. The Iowa law provides that assignments shall have priority in order of execution upon employer. Connecticut has the...
