It s tough to feel like you re unloved. I d felt loved for some time now, cared about and perhaps a bit pampered to a point that I felt more secure than I should have, though of course this is the point where you need to begin worrying about things. As it turned out, the sweet, loving, tender boyfriend I d doted on for so long was cheating on me, and to be honest I didn t have a clue what to do about it. Leaving felt almost as difficult as staying, and so for some time I foolishly pretended as though nothing was wrong. And then one day, I just couldn t take it anymore. My life was passing me by as I waited around for someone who would never truly love me, and it was then that I decided to cut and run. I burned off into the night, driving like a maniac for refuge elsewhere, leaving my old life behind and trading my pain in for something completely new and unknown. It was the middle of the morning when I pulled in at an open, but apparently abandoned gas station, sifting through the empty aisles as though I was the last girl on Earth. As I was waiting to make my purchase at the place, however, searching wildly for a cashier, I couldn t help but notice a green pair of eyes flashing in at me from the outside world. A werewolf. I ran for my life, scrambling through the aisles as though set alight with fire, only to come crashing down to a halt against the glass of the drink coolers,...
